Turkey's Greatest Statesman a Slave. We extract the following interesting account of one of Turkey's statesmen from a letter in the Boston Post, received by the last steamer: "Turkey has lost the strongest of her old statesmen during the present month, Khosref Pasha. He was ninety-seven years old, and has been a prominent man in the councils of the Porte ever since the days of Catharine of Russia. As he was the oldest, so he was the richest of the notables of Turkey. His history is as thoroughly Turkish as were his honors and habiliments. When George Washington was surveying lands on the branches of the Ohio, and Seth Pomeroy was boring out the spiked cannon on the forts of Louisburg, Khosref was a lame and deformed orphan in the mountains of the Cancassus, obtaining a precarious existence by little services among the cottagers. Before the British red coats had marched back to Boston from Lexington Common, to the tune of Yankee Doodle, the humpbacked beggar boy had stood as a slave in the Stamboul slave market, had been installed as servant into the palace of Abdul Hamed, and had found his way to the favor of young Mahmoud, the then heir to the throne. In the country and the position where the passport to success is a fine figure and engaging manners, young Khosref, destitute of both, possessed some faculty of gaining and retaining good will, which enabled him to conquer nature. When Mahmond succeeded to the throne, the fortunes of the orphan boy rose, and being shortly afterwards made secretary to Capudan Pasha, he laid the foundation of his enormous wealth. He has outlived all his friends and all his foes, but his prosperity never left him.

I ill Tell the second and has generally successed in every change, and has generally successed in every change. ceeded in obtaining something from every revo-lution. But he was always a slave. From the servitude of the imperial house there is no manumission. Though he leaves nearly two million pounds sterling in money, every far-thing of it goes to the present Sultan."

Seizure of Diamonds, alleged to have been

A few days since a posse of Custom House officials, headed by Capt. Rynders, called at the establishment of Theo. Christ, manufacturer and importer of jewelry at No. 119 Nassau street, and took possession of his entire stock, alleging that some or all of it has been smug-gled. The officers retained possession of the goods until Wednesday, the safes containing the diamonds and other jewelry to the value of $100,000 being kept sealed, except during the time the search was progressing. Finally, the legitimate importation of all the property was satisfactorily accounted for, with the exception of a package of diamonds and other precious stones valued at $4,000, which the officers took possession of upon the allegation that they had been smuggled. Mr. Christ states that these belong partly to private individuals and partly to himself, he having purchased them from a wealthy lady of this city. The officers, before removing the package, offered to let them remain, provided Mr. C. would prove that they had not been smuggled, but Mr. C., by advice of his counsel, L. B. Shepard, esq., preferred leaving those who charge him with smuggling to prove it and sears they have acted them. to prove it, and says they have acted without justifiable evidence. The matter will be imme-diately investigated.—N. Y. Express.

The Gallinagos Islands-Protest of the English, French, and Spanish Govern-

The El Mercurio de Provincias, a paper published at Valparaiso, contains a copy of the protest made by the Minister of Peru, the Charge d' Affaires of France, and the British Consul at Quito, against the transfer to the United States of any interest whatever in the Gallipagos Islands. The document says, it having come to their knowledge that by a between the Equitorian Government and the United States of North America, by which nd, considering that the transaction violated high interests, irrespective of Equador, "and that the Government cannot and ought not to bind itself without the assent of the nations whose interests would be directly or indirectly affected, and reflecting that their silence might be received as an implied acquiescence that would operate against rights which they are bound to protect against the aforesaid treaty, in respect to the stipulation alluded to, and to every other particular that may damage or curtail the political and commercial interests of their respective nations."

The Case of Judge Loring.

The reports of the legislative committee are published in a house document. The majority report, signed by O. W. Allen, of the senate, and J. W. Stone, E. E. Knowles, and Oliver Warner, of the house, is a long anti-slavery argument, and concludes with recommending Mr. Loring's removal from the office of judge of probate for Suffolk county, "because he has sinned against the moral sentiments of Massa-chusetts," not because he has failed in his duty in said office. Bradford K. Pierce and Erasmus Gould declined to sign the majority report, because no evidence was put in to show that his decision as U. S. commsssioner in the slave case was corrupt; because if he had decided in favor of the slave no complaint would have been made against him; and because they will not "make one man a sacrifice for the sins of others, even for the benefit of a good cause." Their reasons are followed by a minority report, signed by George H. Devereux, which goes against the removal of Mr. Loring as an arbitrary exercise of power, dangerous to the independence of the judiciary, and neither just nor if prepared to resist the authority of the Union, ought to do it in her sovereign capacity, instead of offering up a single citizen as a victim to anti-slavery rage and fanaticism.

All three of these papers are sharp upon the fugitive slave law, and the Nebraska act. But the only offence alleged against the judge of but was not communicated to the public au-probate is that he, as a commissioner, acted thorities—that it was the design of the parties against the public opinion of the State. We shall see whether the k. n. legislature will punish him for that .- Boston Post.

Spring Fashions.—Thursday was "opening day" among the New York milliners, and the Herald gives the following description of the Spring bonnet :-

The bonnets this season are not so much front is slightly projecting, and very many are covered with dotted lace, either black or white. They are trimmed with a profusion of flowers, ntermingled with white and black blonde. Flowers are much used in trimming, both inside and out, and quite a novel effect is produced by the combination of white and black blonde. Straw enters largely into the composition of bonnets this season, the fronts of many being formed of it, and the trimmings of others receiving additional beauty from the intermixture of flowers of the same glancing material.

Madame Ferrerro exhibits two splended specimens. The crown and edge of the front is made of the finest splint straw, and the front and part of the side crown is of hair, arranged so as to resemble puffings, each puffing being confined by a single row of braid. An exquisite

What is a Hindoo! New York is famous for names to political parties. The Whigs are classified as "Silver Greys" and "Wooly Heads," the Democrats as "Hards" and "Softs," and the K. N.'s as "Hindoos." The following explains the reason:

The Thugs of Hindostan are an association who believe it is their duty to exterminate all who do not belong to their own order. They meet in secret lodges, and are sworn with solemn oaths. They lie in wait for unsuspecting passers-by, and attacking them suddenly, and without warning, strangle them. The higher the position and character of the victim, the greater s supposed to be the merit of the act. The Thug who strangles the largest number of victims in the course of a year is rewarded with the title of Grand Thug of the Council, and invested with despotic power. If any Thug refuses to yield unquestioning power to the commands of the Grand Thug, they make an image or effigy of him, which they burn, at the same time stoning and cursing it. This is supposed to visit him with all manner of misfortunes. After this any Thug who meets him is bound to stab him to the heart, provided he can do so without risk of detection. Every member of the order is sworn to deny his connection with it, and when interrogated to say he knows nothing about it. When apprehended and brought to justice, they claim to be persons of the greatest morality and virtue, and justify their acts by saying that they only wish to establish the true religion, (viz: their own,) and prevent foreigners, (viz: all who are not Thugs,) from getting control of the country.

The points of resemblance between the Thugs of Hindostan, and the Know-nothings of this country, are, it will be seen, many and striking; with preference, on the score of merit and fair dealing, slightly in favor of the Thugs.—Maine

From the Rochester Democrat of Wed needsy. The Late Mystery.

The discovery of the body of the late Emma Moore, on Monday, and the subsequent post mortem examination, by three reputable physicians, throws light upon a mystery which, but an hour before the discovery, was veiled in darkness. It has put an end to ten thousand stories, to the speculations which inculpated relatives in crime, and the surmises that she had, for reasons best known to herself, left her home to become the victim and votary of degradation and crime.

It is now so evident that Emma Moore was the victim of a heartless seducer, that no man longer doubts. In consequence of her fall, and an apprehension of her coming shame, she either destroyed her own life, or it was taken by some one else who had an equal interest in concealing her disgrace. There will be different opinions on this subject.

It seems probable that if the act was voluntary and premeditated, she would have left her money and gold watch at home, where they would have been of service to her friends. There are no marks of violence discovered upon her person, and if she was murdered, i must have been done by some one possessing her confidence, who could easily persuade her into an evening walk in a locality where a sudden push might, in an unguarded moment precipitate her from a bridge into the water. We need scarcely say, that if such was the manner of her death, although the truth may never be ascertained in the legal mode, the conviction of the community points with set-tled certainty to the guilty individual. But although he may be innocent of this erime, it is morally certain that he is guilty of one no less atrocious.

physicians that the deceased was enciente, and had been so for six or seven months. This, together with refusal to marry on the part of whoever betrayed her, (which may be supposed,) will be considered as affording a rea-tempted Bribery to obtain his Pardon. The grand jury of the court of sessions, in Philadelphia, has in a late presentment stated, otectorate is granted to the latter over the that evidence had been adduced before the Island of Gallipagos, they presented to the Minister of Foreign Affairs considerations against it, what, however, were ineffectual; oursel, and paying the expenses of procuring counsel, and paying the expenses of procuring a pardon from the Governor. The communication was made to Mrs. Beale, who immediately informed her husband of the proposition. His reply was as follows:

MOYAMENSING PRISON, Jan. 8, 1855. MY DEAR WIFE: Since your letter of this morning came, I have been reflecting upon the principles involved in the proposition made by the friend of Governor Bigler. You know how anxious I am to get home, and yet I never can consent to do anything that is not right to get there. Now, if it is right that I should be pardoned, it is Governor Bigler's duty to do it: but if his conscience says I ought not to be pardoned, it would be wrong in me or any other person to give him money to violate his conscience; therefore, I never can consent to give one penny. It is our duty to do all we can to convince the Governor of my innocence, and of his duty to pardon, and leave the event to the Lord. have been convinced for months, that justice and conscience are, with some men, like things of merchandise, to be bought and sold to the highest bidder. Perhaps I am too stubborn in this matter, but I ask only what my conscience says I am entitled to. I have been unjustly deprived of my liberty, and I cannot think it right to give money for its restoration, as i must be a matter of justice and conscience with the Governor.

Good night, my love, I have to close. Your affectionate husband, STEPHEN T. BEALE. These facts coming to the knowledge of the District Attorney, he laid them before the Grand Jury, and witnesses subposneed to testify before them. It was proved that the plan was concocted by one Charles C. Rhodes and Mrs. magnanimous on the part of the State, which, Turner, Mrs. Beale's sister-that the individu als to whom this plan was communicated, and by whom it was declined, were the Rev. John Chambers and a Mr. Daniel Steinmetz-that the existence of such a plan was known to those gentlemen and other friends of the prisoner as far back as the early part of January to this arrangement to appropriate $5,000 to the employment of counsel, who was designated, but there is no mode of ascertaining from the evidence taken what was to be done with the other $5,000.

It appears that since the conviction of Dr. Beale his stricken wife has been surrounded by harpies anxious to be employed to obtain his release. A man representing himself as an attorney boarding at the American Hotel, called flared as last; the crown droops more, and the on her, and said that he had it in his power to produce an affidavit which would conclusively show that her husband was the victim of a foul conspiracy, and would procure his immediate pardon. He asked for his services and trouble, the moderate sum of twenty-five dollars. After appealing to his honor as a man, and saying to him she should have but two dollars left for the necessary expenses of her large family, and receiving the most solemn assurances that he would fulfil his promise, she gave him the money, and she saw him no more. Subsequently the other plan was suggested; and it is probable that by exposure the knavery of these pardon-brokers will receive a check.—N. Y. Express.

WHAT NEXT?-We saw the other day Mr. J. border of hair lace, with a shell-like edge, light as blonde and far more beautiful, is attached to the front rim of the hat and thrown back.

M. Santord, of West Mediord, Massachusetts, who lost both legs by an accident several years ago, walking about the streets just like any other man. He limped a little, it is true, but With the exception of the crown, the hat is transparent, and it is, without exception, the rarest and most recherche we have ever seen.

The French Industrial Exhibition The Paris correspondent of the New York Evening Post says that the approaching exhibition in Paris promises to be more brilliant and successful than was anticipated by the most sanguine, three months ago. All the continental nations will be extensively represented. Great Britain, only, does the war so extensively engross public attention as to interfere seriously with the preparations of the Paris fair. Austria which had seven hundred exhibitors at the London fair, will have eighteen hundred here; Prussia, which had six hundred exhibitors at London, will have sixteen hundred here; and even Switzerland will have more than five hundred, vouching for the dignity of her position as a manufacturing State.

The United States has the place of honor in the exhibition. On entering the building by the grand entrance, the visitor will advance at once into the American section. Great Britai will have a position upon the right and France upon the left. More than four thousand square feet of space has been assigned to the United States, and on the 23d of February last the Central Committee of American Commissioners had been notified of intention to exhibit by but about sixty-four Americans. The prospects were that the department would not be filled up at the time of opening. It is to be hoped that this will not be the case. America should be well represented in an exhibition like that which is coming off in Paris, and we trust that her citizens will be enterprising enough to send a handsone show of goods to the fair. A display of American productions, manufactures and inventions, might be made which would be second to that of no other country.

INDEPENDENCE, Missouri, March 15.—We have just received by express the proclamation of Governor Reader. It is yet uppublished, as it seems there is no hurry on the part of his Excellency to have it circulated abroad. The manuscript is in a printing office in Lawrence, whence our herald procured a copy. The most important are the following paragraphs relative to the relection. A voter must dwell here at the time of offering his vote. He must then have commenced an actual inhabitancy, which he actually intends to continue permanently. he actually intends to continue permanently, and he must have made the territory his dwel ing to the exclusion of any other home. In case any election is contested, the parties ag-grieved must bring the matter before the Go-vernor, who shall determine the case between the parties contesting; he thus makes himself the legislator, judge, and executive. The election takes place on Friday, 30th instant.

FALL OF BLACK SNOW .- Professor Fairchild of Oberlin, Ohio, states that on February 7th, they had in that region a fall of dark-colored snow. The crystals were in the form of dense snow. The crystals were in the form of decise icy pellets, above the twentieth of an inch in diameter. It fell to the depth of nearly an inch, and when melted it yielded about half an inch of water. The snow had a distinct smoky taste, and on filtering it through paper a darl sooty substance was obtained.

THE LOGAN GRAZIER. BY THOMAS DUNN ENGLISH. At dawn to where the herbage grows, Up yonder hill the grazier goes. Obedient to his every word, Before him stalk the lowing herd. Reluctant in the misty morn, With stamping hoof and tossing horn, With lengthened low and angry moan, Go black and dappled, red and roan. Through drain and hollow, up the hill The slender ox and mighty bull-You see less beauty in the herd. Than in you orange-tinted bird; You fix your better pleased gaze You maples on the hill-side high, Or on you field of waving rye. More pleased with maize, or rye, or trees-The grazier's sight is not on these. He sees a netted purse of gold, In every bellowing three-year old. He sees new comforts round his home When buyers down from Tazewell come He sees his cabin nigh the creek, Its mud-daubed chimney changed to brick. Its rude logs hid by clap-boards sawed, Split shingles on its roof so broad; New puncheons on the worn-out floor, A picket fence before the door, And cups of tin and plates of delf, And pewter spoons, adorn the shelt Close where the rifle hangs on hooks, On cupboard top are rows of books-The Pilgrim of the dreaming John, The well-thumbed speeches of Calhoun, The pictured life of Daniel Boone; D'Aubigne's story told so well, How Luther fought and Cramner fell; To please his wife a yellow gown, And beads to deck his daughters brown. A jack-knife for his youngest son, A rifle for his eldest one. All these to him the cattle low, As up the hill they slowly go. He fears no ravage of disease, 'Mong brutes so strong and fat as these. There's salt enough for them in store, Brought from Kanawha's muddy shore. The herbage on the fill is good, The fern is thick within the wood. There's tender grass in yonder drain, And pea-vine on the summit plain. High thought of gain that moment thrills The grazier of the Logan hills. He envies not the hero bold, He cares not who may office hold. The statesman's pride, the stout man's limb, The lover's hopes are naught to him. His mind three things alone receives-So these may flourish and be fair, All else around is smoke and air. Oh, Logan Grazier, stout and strong, Despising fraud, defying wrong; Brave as thine ancestors who bore And fearless met in battle shock, The wild and painted Shawanock; True as the rifle in thy hand, And generous as thy fertile land-Full oft I've eaten by thy side Thy cakes of corn and venison fried Oft in thy cabin as thy guest Have stretched my weary limbs to rest. I love to note thy honest brow, Staunch friend and true companion thou; And know no manlier form is seen Than dwells within thy coat of jean; Truth fills those eyes so keenly set Beneath thy fox-skin cap, and yet I would not that thy lot were mine, I would not that my lot were thine. Guard thou thy beeves and count thy gold, Be glad when those great herds are s For me, by midnight lamp, I pore My manuscript in silence o'er. Each to the path that suits his feet; Each toil, for time is moving fleet, And soon in woollen shroud arrayed,

Both in our narrow coffins laid.

Or making songs has been our care

Shall pass the poet's glowing words, Shall pass the grazier's lowing herds;

And from men's memory fade away Both grazier's shout and poet's lay.

The poet's and the grazier's form Shall feed alike the greedy worm;

It matters not if cattle fair,

PROSPECTUS

UNITED STATES TIMES,
A Weekly Newspaper to be published in Washington City.
The undersigned, expecting soon to retire from he position he has for some time held as Superinendent of the United States Census, intends to devote himself to the control and management of the REVIEW, of which, for the last nine years, he has been the editor and proprietor, and to the publication in the City of Washington of a weekly newspaper with the above title. The material for this paper will consist, in part, of selections or extracts from articles admitted into the REVIEW, but mainly of other original literary, educational, industrial, and miscellaneous matters, including digests of the current events of the day, home and foreign; the proceedings of Congress and the acts of the Government; liteary and scientific sketches and essays upon eading and popular topics; biographical sketches of public men; digest of official reports, State and Federal; the state of the markets in the several arge cities; the progress and prospects of crops; supply, demand, prices, etc.; the increase of the country as shown by statistics, bringing down hose of the National Census always to date.

The object will be, through careful editoria nanagement and a large and well-selected correspondence, to establish at the seat of govern ment a Family Newspaper which shall be adapted to the wants of every community; imparting musement and information, and political, only to he extent of maintaining the institutions of the country and defending the rights and sovereignty

The City of Washington, from the advantages which it presents for obtaining material of every kind, through the action of the Smithsonian Institution, the Patent Office, and the National Agricultural Convention, etc., and the several Bureaus and Departments of Government, from its conti guity to the large commercial cities, from the extended, exciting, and all important interests that concentrate upon it, is, perhaps, the most eligible ocation for such a journal, and ample guarantees of its success have already been received. It will be printed in folio for the convenience of binding, and similar in style to the New York Albion.

The subscription price of the REVIEW will renain at $5 per annum, but for the convenience of the large class of persons who may not desire the whole work, or who may only solicit information upon one or more of the subjects to which it is devoted, it is in contemplation to make separate publication of the matter relating to Agriculture; another of that relating to Manufacures; a third to Internal Improvements; a fourth o Commerce; and a fifth to Education and Letters. These publications will be but departments of the whole work, and may be subscribed for separately at $1 per annum each. They will appear monthly in handsome periodical style, of from twenty-five to thirty-two pages; constituting an annual octavo volume of 360 pages each, showing at a single view and in a condensed form the whole results, within the year, in the particular department, in our own country and abroad, as the REVIEW itself will show them in all of the departments of industry and enterprise.

The Office of DeBow's Review will remain as located at Washington, which will be also the main office of the other Journals, and may be addressed at all times in regard to them. The particular address of the editor, whether Washington or New Orleans, will be furnished from time o time, in the work.

SCOTT'S WEEKLY PAPER.—The publisher of this large and popular family journa offers for the coming year (1854) a combination or literary attractions heretofore unattemped by any of the Philadelphia weeklies. Among the new features will be a new and brilliant series of original romances by George Lippard, entitled Legends of the Last Century. All who have read Mr. Lippard's celebrated "Legends of the American Revolution," published for fifty-six consecutive weeks in the "Saturday Courier," will find these pictures of French and American history endowed with all the power and brilliancy of his previous productions. The first of a series of original novellettes, called Morris Hartley, er the Knights of the Mystic Valley, by Harrison W. Ainsworth, is about to be commenced. It will be handsomely illustrated by twelve fine engravings, and its startling incidents cannot fail to elicit undivided praise. Emmerson Bennett, the distinguished novelist, and author of Viola, etc., etc., is also engaged to furnish a brilliant novellette to follow the above. Mrs. Mary Andrews Denison, author of Home Pictures, Patience Worthington and her Grandmother, etc., will continue a splendid domestic novellette, eatified the Old Ivy Grove, and H. C. Watson an illustrated story called the Two Edged Knife—a graphic picture of early life in Old Kentutky. To these will be added original contributions and selections from Mrs. Caroline Lee Hentz, Clara Clairville, Lille Lilberne, Mrs. Stowe, Grace Greenwood, and other distinguished writers; the news of the day, graphic editorials, full reports of the provision, money, and stock markets, letters from travelers at home and abroad, etc., etc.
